Program Description

Overview

OJP is committed to advancing work that promotes civil rights and racial equity, increases access to justice, supports crime victims and individuals impacted by the justice system, strengthens community safety and protects the public from crime and evolving threats, and builds trust between law enforcement and the community. This program will set standards for and improve corrections departments' analytical capacity in order to enable more informed planning and decision-making at the agency and state levels.

Statutory Authority

Any awards under this solicitation would be made under Department of Justice Appropriations Act, 2022 (Pub. L. No. 117-103, 136 Stat. 49, 127).

Specific Information

Corrections agencies pursue complex goals to rehabilitate people in their custody — including through education, treatment, and other programs — while maintaining safe, secure, and humane facilities. Their ability to achieve those goals is improved by access to data, or constrained by a lack thereof. Corrections consumes the majority share of states' criminal justice resources, and agencies must make proactive, data-driven decisions about how to use resources and run their operations.

To be effective at both rehabilitative and safety goals, corrections agencies have to understand what happens within their facilities and the agency, as well as anticipate the impact of changes in the system around them. As part of the criminal justice system, corrections agencies are subject to the direct and indirect effects of sentencing laws, budget decisions, and other system responses, such as supervision revocations. Agencies need to be able to project their population changes, and request and use resources, and make operations decisions, accordingly. Understanding who is under what form of correctional control, why they are there, and for how long is essential to maintain operations as the population changes. For example, overall numbers are necessary to comply with capacity and staffing policies, and characteristics of the population that impact classification, housing determinations, and programming and treatment are critical as well. When those decisions are proactive, there is sufficient and appropriate space in intentionally designed and appointed facilities, but when those decisions are reactive, state prisons have historically contracted beds in private prisons and local jails, which often have fewer rehabilitation resources and reentry supports. In addition to planning and maintaining their own operations, corrections agencies are also developers of intelligence. For example, corrections agencies can gather information related to security threat groups, and contraband cell phones can yield information that is useful to law enforcement and community corrections to identify networks and illicit activity that threaten people inside and outside facilities.

Corrections agencies must have a capacity to collect, analyze, and use data in order to make informed and proactive decisions to facilitate change in a safe environment. This program will help corrections agencies identify the data they need to collect, train staff in collecting and analyzing this data, and provide guidance to correctional leadership about how to use results to improve operations.

Goals, Objectives, Deliverables, and Timeline

Goals

The goal of this program is to improve the operations of correctional facilities by helping the managing agencies establish, assess, and improve their corrections analysis programs. This will help analysts improve their skills and help agencies make the best use of analysis results. While this program could be expanded to include community corrections in future years pending needs of the field and availability of additional funds, applicants should limit the scope of proposals under this solicitation to prisons.

Objectives

BJA will make one award to:

- Identify the core competencies for corrections data analysis and how to use the analysis results.
- Train agency analysts and their leadership to meet those core competencies.
- Develop trainings, resources, and communities of practice to implement the standards as described below.

Deliverables

The required deliverables are:

- Convene all 50 states' and, if appropriate, territories' corrections analysis leaders into a network at the start of the project to inform the project and continue throughout.
- Identify standards for:
 - The analysis, including to inform particular areas of corrections operations such as population projections, classification, housing determination, infractions, grievances, entry and release from restrictive housing, gang identification, data from contraband cell phones.
 - The core competencies to conduct and synthesize the analysis findings.
 - The sharing of results, including model policies, with relevant justice partners.
- Develop and provide:
 - Tools for agencies to assess their capacity, including corrections analysts' skills and the availability of data, in relation to the core competencies.
 - A self-paced online training curriculum for corrections data analysts.
 - Tools and resources to inform agencies' hiring and training of analysts.
 - Guidance about how analysis results are useful to inform agency leadership's operational decisions and to further inform budgetary and policy decisions.
- Facilitate communities of practice and elevate learnings to inform the field.
- Disseminate the core competencies in a manner accessible and compelling to corrections leadership and analysts.
- Establish a council of expert trainers and analysts to engage in pursuit of these deliverables.
- Develop content for a BJA site on corrections analysis at a .gov web address.
- Prepare a final publication documenting the core competencies identified, the extent to which they have been adopted, and how they are being used.
- Assist and successfully transition to a .gov website for the training to continue at the end of the project period.

The Goals, Objectives, and Deliverables are directly related to the performance measures that demonstrate the results of the work completed, as discussed under Application and Submission Information.

Evidence-Based Programs or Practices

OJP strongly emphasizes the use of data and evidence in policymaking and program development in criminal justice, juvenile justice, and crime victim services. For additional information and resources on evidence-based programs or practices, see the OJP Grant Application Resource Guide.

Information Regarding Potential Evaluation of Programs and Activities

OJP may conduct or support an evaluation of the programs and activities funded under this solicitation. For additional information, see the OJP Grant Application Resource Guide section entitled "Information Regarding Potential Evaluation of Programs and Activities."

OJP Priority Areas

The Department of Justice is committed to advancing work that promotes civil rights and racial equity, increases access to justice, supports crime victims and individuals impacted by the justice system, strengthens community safety and protects the public from crime and evolving threats, and builds trust between law enforcement and the community.

1. Priority Considerations Supporting Executive Order 13985, Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government.

Consistent with this Executive Order, the term "underserved community" refers to a population sharing a particular characteristic, as well as a geographic community, that has been systematically denied a full opportunity to participate in aspects of economic, social, and civic life or whose members have been historically underserved, marginalized, and adversely affected by inequality. Such communities include, among others, Black people, Hispanics and Latino/a/e people, Native American and other Indigenous peoples of North America (including Alaska Natives, Eskimos, and Aleuts), Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians, and Pacific Islanders.

In support of Executive Order 13985, OJP will:

- A. Give priority consideration to applications that include project(s) that will promote racial equity and the removal of barriers to access and opportunity for communities that have been historically underserved, marginalized, and adversely affected by inequality, when making award decisions.

To receive this consideration, the applicant must describe how the proposed project(s) will address potential inequities and barriers to equal opportunity, and/or contribute to greater access to services for underserved and historically marginalized populations.

Note: Addressing priority areas is one of many factors that OJP considers in making funding decisions. Receiving priority consideration for one or more priority areas is not a guarantee of an award.

See OJP Grant Application Resource Guide for additional information.

OJP policy and guidance (1) encourage minimization of conference, meeting, and training costs; (2) require prior written approval (which may affect project timelines) of most conference, meeting, and training costs for cooperative agreement recipients, as well as some conference, meeting, and training costs for grant recipients; and (3) set cost limits, which include a general prohibition of all food and beverage costs.

Applications submitted under this solicitation that meet the basic minimum requirements will be evaluated for technical merit by a peer review panel(s) in accordance with OJP peer review policy and procedures using the review criteria listed above.

OJP screens applications to ensure they meet the basic minimum requirements prior to conducting the peer review. Although specific requirements may vary, the following are common requirements applicable to all OJP solicitations:

- The application must be submitted by an eligible type of applicant.
- The application must request funding within programmatic funding constraints (if applicable).

- The application must be responsive to the scope of the solicitation.
- The application must include all items necessary to meet the basic minimum requirements.

Pursuant to the Part 200 Uniform Requirements, before award decisions are made, OJP also reviews information related to the degree of risk posed by the applicant. Among other things to help assess whether an applicant with one or more prior federal awards has a satisfactory record with respect to performance, integrity, and business ethics, OJP checks whether the applicant is listed in SAM as excluded from receiving a federal award.

In addition, if OJP anticipates that an award will exceed $250,000 in federal funds, OJP also must review and consider any information about the applicant that appears in the non-public segment of the integrity and performance system accessible through SAM (currently, the Federal Awardee Performance and Integrity Information System, FAPIIS).

Important note on FAPIIS: An applicant may review and comment on any information about itself that currently appears in FAPIIS and was entered by a federal awarding agency. OJP will consider such comments by the applicant, in addition to the other information in FAPIIS, in its assessment of the risk posed by the applicant.

Absent explicit statutory authorization or written delegation of authority to the contrary, all final award decisions will be made by the Assistant Attorney General, who may consider not only peer review ratings and BJA recommendations, but also other factors as indicated in this section.

Successful applicants will be required to access OJP's performance measurement page at www.ojp.gov/performance to view the specific reporting requirements for this grant program.

Award recipients will be required to submit performance measures data in the Training and Technical Assistance Reporting Portal and separately submit a semi-annual performance report in JustGrants.
