The Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) is addressing workforce development issues in corrections by providing funds to the Council of State Governments/American Probation and Parole Association (CSG/APPA) to develop and implement the Discover Corrections Website. This innovative project is a collaborative effort overseen by core project team of corrections stakeholders including APPA, the American Correctional Association (ACA), American Jail Association (AJA) and the Center for Innovative Public Policies (CIPP). Discover Corrections was launched to the public on February 26, 2012.

As the premier national website dedicated to promoting corrections careers, DiscoverCorrections.com enables employers in corrections to:

- Reach a local and national audience of informed, interested and qualified candidates
- Present them with detailed information about your agency
- Post your jobs to our jobs board
- Search resumes of registered job seekers
- And do it all for FREE

DiscoverCorrections.com also provides students or experienced professionals who are interested in working in corrections a valuable career tool because it:

- Identifies key advantages to a career in corrections
- Presents an accurate and up-to-date description about the role and functions of various aspects of corrections (community corrections, jails and detention, prisons and institutions, and more)
- Describes the wide range of jobs and career choices for potential employees (traditional and non-traditional jobs in the corrections field).
- Summarizes the general requirements needed by applicants to join the profession
- Highlights professionals who work in the field
- Enables job seekers to search open jobs on our full-featured, corrections-specific job board
