* ‘Project focus’ refers to the area within criminal justice and/or behavioral health that the grant-funded project primarily addresses. The categories were defined by the Council of State Governments Justice Center based on their work with the grantees. In order to reflect the growing diversity of projects, the categories were redefined in 2010. Below is further explanation of each of the focus categories:

Co-occurring – Programs focus on individuals with mental illness and co-occurring substance use disorders and provides treatment for both within the program. (Added in FY10)

Corrections – Programs in which the primary goal is to reduce recidivism by improving access to and quality of services for people under correctional supervision. Correctional supervision includes prisons, jails, probation, and parole.

Courts – Court-based programs—most often mental health courts—that augment or accompany a traditional court process.

Juvenile – Projects target youth (18 years or younger) and may focus on diversion programs, mental health treatment, substance abuse treatment, and/ or ancillary services such as education or housing. (Added in FY10)

Law Enforcement – Programs focus on enhancing the capacity of law enforcement to effectively respond to people with mental illnesses. Projects include, but are not limited to, the development of specialized policing responses to people with mental illnesses, the coordination of regional or statewide specialized mental health training for law enforcement and the creation or expansion of collaborative partnerships with other stakeholders to provide appropriate crisis response to people with mental illnesses.

Mental Health – Broad category for projects that are aimed at improving the provision or coordination of treatment of adults with mental illnesses, but are not focused on a particular area of criminal justice (such as corrections or courts). Grantees are typically mental health centers or state or local government agencies dealing with mental health. (Added in FY10)

Multiple – Projects have more than one primary focus. (Used only from FY07 to FY09)

 Three types of grants are awarded through the JMHCP:

- Planning grants with a maximum award of $50,000 over 12 months,
- Planning and implementation grants with a maximum award of $250,000 over 24 months, and
- Expansion grants with a maximum award of $200,000 over 24 months.
